Philosophy 2260F Introduction to the Philosophy of Language

x End-of-lecture group exercises (10%):

- o Lectures will sometimes end or start with a group exercise. You will be asked to form groups of 4-5 (depending on class size) in order to answer a question. The question will bear on the content of the week's lectures. Answers will be handed in at the end of the class. All reasonable answers will be worth 1% of the final mark, for a maximum of 10% for the term. There will be 13 such exercises, so you are allowed to miss up to 3 without penalty. The exercises will be randomly distributed throughout the term.

x Participation (5%):

- o Points are awarded for participation and good conduct in class. To obtain these points, you need not speak frequently, but you must be present, be attentive, and respectfully and constructively engage with peers during class activities and discussions. If you're playing/chatting on your phone or tablet during the class, you will have 0 as your participation mark.

x 3 D S H U V .

- o Essay 1: 700 words, due on October 6 (20%)
- o Essay 2: 900 words, due November 8 (30%) (grades to be return before November 12, the deadline for dropping a course without academic penalty)
- o Essay 3: 900 words, due December 8 (35%)

Paper topics will be distributed in advance. Late papers will be penalized by 3% per day late, including weekends, up to a maximum of 50%. Papers must be submitted through OWL in PDF, Microsoft Word, or OpenOffice (LibreOffice) format. OpenOffice is free. I do not accept hard copy submissions.

No papers will be accepted after the end of classes on December 8. This is a university policy. An exemption requires authorization from the student's Dean Office.

More specific expectations for papers will be provided in class.
